ABOUT JAWAHARLAL NEHRU UNIVERSITY (JNU), NEW DELHI

Jawaharlal Nehru University (JNU), New Delhi is a public research university in South West Delhi, India. It was established in 1969 by an act of Parliament and named after Jawaharlal Nehru, India's first Prime Minister. The University is known for its leading faculties and research emphasis. JNU has bagged the 2nd rank in the university category and 10th in the overall category in India.

A university stands for transformation. JNU exemplifies the positive aspects of human habitation and intervention. Built on the rugged barren terrain of the Aravali hill range, where the 1000-acre campus is housed, the University has turned into a lush green estate of envy, a landscape bursting into the colours of bougainvillea and amaltas, mangoes and jamun (Indian blackberry), and is the home of peacocks and nilgais. JNU is a birdwatcher's paradise, with parts of it now hosting almost dense forests.

We can proudly say that Jawaharlal Nehru University is a unique university not just in India but the world with its diversity and commitment to social justice and intellectual attainment.

The mission of the University is social contribution through education and learning, using advanced research tools and methodologies at the highest levels of excellence matching international standards. Towards this mission, JNU will strive to:

- Synergize the potential of JNU faculties and their innovative ideas and efforts to achieve the highest academic excellence.
- Keep the University at the forefront by initiating innovative, fundamental and inter/multi/trans-disciplinary courses that meet the needs of society by contributing to new research evidence and preparing a new generation of scientists to address the challenges society faces.
